Life, I love you

Life, I love you-

Your miracles of sudden laughter
Your wonders of love and friendship.
You give me joy; I cannot hold it all;
So I run Seeing, touching, searching, wondering.
I'm glad I'm alive!

Life, you have for me Much of happiness, And much of grief and loneliness. Sometimes I find myself uncertain, Not knowing what I want, Or else obsessed by wanting. Like images in a shattered mirror, My happiness is broken and distorted, And disillusionment rises, bitter and choking.

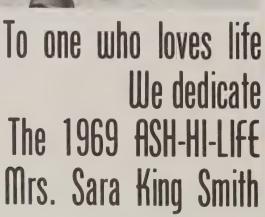

Yet I would not ask for fewer sorrows,
Or lose one tear that makes a smile
Worth more than if I never cried.
As the sunlight is brighter for the shadows,
So my joy, tempered by disillusionment,
Is stronger and more lasting,
And I can but smile and whisper the words
"Life, I love you."

Long hours of study proved worthwhile for eleven Juniors as they were named Junior Marshals. Playing an important part in school life, they ushered at the musical, participated in graduation activities and ushered on other special occasions.

Vocational Guidance Day

How much money does an architect make annually? Does a psychologist have to take many math courses? How many hours is the average working day? Questions were asked, and questions were answered as students sought the guidance of professional businessmen and career women in various discussion groups. Vocational Guidance Day, December 20, 1968, with the theme "Greatness Lies In A Destination" proved to be a success.

Sayonara

One hundred yards of tobacco cloth, wire, wood, crepe paper, trees, trees, and more trees plus much hard work turned out to be one of the most beautiful and enjoyable Junior-Senior Proms ever given at Asheboro High School. In spite of doubt, fear, and at times, complete despair, the class of '69 transformed the gymnasium into an elegant Oriental garden complete with temple and Buddha.

Highlighting the evening was the selection of the Queen, Kaye Cox, and her court: Rhonda McGill, princess; Ann Harris, Joyce Parsons, Senior Attendants; Susan Brown, Nancy McFadden, Junior Attendants.

The versatile Mellotones provided the music, which rounded out a perfectly delightful evening.

Pins Symbolize Membership

During her induction into Civinettes, Anne Kemp Alexander is "pinned" by Robin Bunker.

With fruit baskets and carols, Future Homemakers take Christmas cheer to rest

Future Homemakers of America

While the Future Homemakers of America practiced their broom maneuvering and dish washing, they also made constructive plans for future projects. Organizing a candy sale, a Sweetheart Ball, and an Assembly Program took much of their time. However, these "do-gooders" still had ample opportunity to make ditty bags for our servicemen and visit the elderly at Christmas. Girls in this club found that the finer things in life are built on a substantial foundation of necessary skills.

Beta Club

Beta Club members take advantage of every spare minute to practice their favorite, "The Beta Club Song."

What has a pale face from long hours of bending over reports, a stooped back from carrying loads of books, and bags under the eyes from staying up late studying? One of the Beta members, that's Club what! Yet in spite of fanatical devotion study, the Beta Clubber enjoys other things as well. He can have good times as well as write chemical equations, and he likes a basketball game almost as much as a book on differential calculus. In Beta Club, he can find expression for both sides of his character— participating in intellectual discussions and relaxing like a normal teenager.

Puzzled by the mechanics of moonshine stills, photographic procedures, and the Apollo missions, the Future Scientists of America came to their meetings full of interest. Questions such as "What is ESP?" and "Is Jeanne Dixon a fake?" were stirred by Dr. John Freeman's assembly program. Though many experiments literally blew up in their faces, the Future Scientists' determination never fizzled.

Future Scientists of America

Boys' Monogram Club

Although the Boys' Monogram Club was not a Heinz mixture, it did contain almost 57 varieties. It had brawny bruisers, robust wrestlers, lithe runners, crafty cagers, co-ordinated putters, agile netters and competent managers. Any one of these "ingredients" was easily recognized by a common label—the distinctive letter "A" on his blue jacket.

Girls' Monogram Club

"Asheboro High School Cheerleaders wear combat boots!" This statement cannot be challenged by anyone who has viewed the Girls' Monogram Club initiation. Skinned knees and sore heads resulted from attempts to build a human pyramid. Members who survived the rugged induction and received their coveted "A's" managed to sponsor intramurals and paint the dressing room benches Carolina blue.

Youth Council

Following Lady Bird's example, the Youth Council sponsored a county-wide beautification program. Placing picnic tables in city parks was only one of numerous activities in the cleanup campaign. Their biggest fund-raising project was the Powder Puff football game in which girls from all over the county participated. Since its organization, this club has done much to improve the relationships between high schools in the Randolph area.

At Powder Puff football game, Jane Auman gracefully receives a pass.

Creating spirit around Asheboro High School was at times a task, but the faithful Spirit Club was "socking it to 'em" day and night. "Rip 'Em Up, Tear 'Em Up" was shouted from the bleachers constantly, while the stickers, posters and ribbons started a mood of "Go-Go, Get-'Em, Get-'Em." Remember those days when you asked for the mustard and suddenly little messages on the marquee caught your eye? Didn't they brighten your day, especially those urging you to ride the ever-faithful student bus? High spirits proved the club's success.

Spirit Club

Future Teachers of America

Scampering through the halls of Asheboro High School, leaving shiny red apples, newly prepared calendars, and bright yellow flowers were the members of the Future Teachers of America Club. To appreciate the Future Teachers of America one should have seen these industrious students scurrying off to the First Methodist Church with bundles of packages for White Christmas. However, behind all these merriments lay a definite aim: to become educators of tomorrow.

Key Clubbers surround Sweetheart Martha Pickett.

Key Club

Newly tapped Key Clubbers had their blue and gold pins confiscated by interested females a week after the assembly. One misfortune followed another when the boys found there was work to do. Projects of this clowning but industrious lot varied from selling brooms to publishing the "Dial".

Even before school began, the Junior Jaycees were at work finding or creating jobs to keep the club busy. Starting with an "oil-in" (oiling the doors of the school), industrious members washed desks, cleaned the school grounds, and built "Stone's Throne." Pop concerts and door stops were their specialty. Living up to their position as the fifth Junior Jaycee Club chartered in America was a difficult challenge; but this club, through their many projects, proved themselves worthy.

Junior Jaycees proved themselves worthy.

William the Conqueror triumphs over Alexander the Great.

Chess Club

Never lacking in spirit, the meetings of the Chess Club were almost as lively as its members. Topics of discussion ranged from strategic maneuvers to chess equipment. Although opportunities for tournament competition were few, most members were consoled by the thought that perhaps other chess clubs were afraid to challenge them.

Spanish I Club

Members of the Spanish I Club celebrated their increasing fluency in a newly acquired language at the annual fiesta. As these students performed the "Mexican Hat Dance" and sampled spicy foods, they learned that Spanish wasn't all verb conjugations and personal pronouns.

Golden chariots and racing horses came to a halt once a month in the back parking lot when aliens clad in sandals, white tunics, and golden armor invaded the confines of Asheboro High School. The little theatre became the Asheborian forum as senators showed thumbs down to the plebian affairs of North Carolina and relived the patrician history of North Italy.

Latin Club

Spanish II Club

"Have you ever had Spanish heartburn?" Los 33 Amigos attending the Spanish fiesta did after washing their hot tamales down with bottles of tequila. This condition was further aggravated by strenuous games of Twister and pass the Lifesaver on a toothpick. Afterwards the stuffed Spaniards had what the men who eat for a living take—Alka Seltzer.

At Spanish Club fiesta, Louis Cannon looks hungrily at hot tomales

French Club officers and Madame Smith toast the success of their French cooking endeavor.

French Club

French Club members dared the agonies of indigestion by planning and cooking a typical French banquet. But there were no ill effects when the gourmet meal was finally served. First, members of legal age had a round of toasts with Canada Dry Champagne, Vintage Then they sat down to such fare as coq au vin, pommes de terre dauphine, and peche melba. After it was all over, envious prospective members flocked to the next meeting to join the club.

Milton Boswell braces himself for his afternoon rounds.

Bus Drivers' Club

Transporting a load of screaming students to and from school is not exactly the most appealing job in the world. Yet the Asheboro High School Bus Drivers heroically performed this task 180 days of the year and received little credit for it. In addition, they sponsored campaigns in school to encourage safe driving among themselves and their fellow students.

Upon completion of academic study during the first half of the school day, the Distributive Education Club left campus for job-training throughout Asheboro. Members participated in both state and district leadership conferences and a district contest held in Siler City. These students found that the knowledge they gained was a practical asset for the future.

Future Business Leaders of America

By whom will the problems of our business world be inherited? Many will fall into the capable hands of Future Business Leaders of America. To prepare themselves for this responsibility, members of this organization have combined shorthand and typing skills with business and math courses. Someday their employers will appreciate their having gained such valuable training and experience.

Bobby Miller works as a veterinarian's assistant in the afternoons.

Vocational Industrial Clubs of America

Roaring motors heralded the departure of the Vocational Industrial Club each day at 1:10. Even with their busy schedule, these on-the-job trainees somehow found time to participate in various activities such as district and state conventions. Tours of several industries and Randolph Technical Institute were organized. Last spring, members honored their employers in the annual Employer-Employee Banquet.

Civinettes

Although the Civinettes did not extinguish any towering flames, they did plan projects with the Civitans to aid their school and community. During cold football months those girls with red noses, blue hands, and programs for sale were the Civinettes. In addition, they sold booster buttons for spirit and cushions for comfort. Later during the year, Civinettes were rewarded with a long cruise in the back of a hay filled truck.

Council Representatives

Governing the student body of Asheboro High School, the Student Council incorporated representation and leadership in the democratic process. Each homeroom president was responsible for relaying the needs and problems of any student to the other representatives, who in turn encouraged the Student Council to take desirable action. Weekly meetings were open to any interested student; there he was free to express his opinions, whether or not they agreed with those of the council majority. The prominent activities of this school year included the spring talent show, the selection of a Student of the Month, and the sponsorship of football games, all of which stimulated the student body into extracurricular involvement.

Composed of the vice-presidents of all clubs, the Interclub Council endeavored to co-ordinate club activities of Asheboro High School. It provided suggestions and supervision from money-raising projects such as dances and candy sales. Keith Benson, vice-president of the Student Council, guided this union of the clubs.

Asheboro High School's Executive Council consisted of the Student Council officers, the presidents of the three classes, and the Student Council advisor. Philip Teachey served as 1968-1969 president of the Student Council, with Keith Benson as vice-president, Susan Brown as secretary, and Tommy Delk as treasurer. Lacy Presnell, Buster Henry, and Mike Cockerham served as presidents of the Senior, Junior, and Sophomore classes, respectively; Mr. Jarrett served as advisor. Functioning as the Student Council leaders, they assumed the responsibility of organizing and initiating its projects. Illustrating their success were the efficiency and smoothness which characterized the weekly council meetings.

Varsity Football

Coming to school two weeks earlier than other students was not unusual to our varsity football team. The gridders, during many days of conditioning, prepared for their new season.

The Blue Comets, spirited by Coach Max Morgan, Coach Bill Smith, and Coach Russ Murphy, played one of their toughest schedules in years. Faced by top opponents in the 3-A conference, Asheboro won three out of ten games. Team members were honored at the end of the season by having Ken Morgan named to the South Piedmont All-Conference Team.

team struggled through a rather limited schedule this year. They played only five games, the rest of the schedule being either forfeited or cancelled. Coached by Mr. Don Thomas, the Comets showed their strength early in the season as they shut out their first two opponents, Sanford and Albermarle. Then the team seemed to lose momentum as it Thomasville and was defeated by Lexington and Kannapolis. This, perhaps, was because many of the starters were moved to fill vacant varsity positions.

Inspiration and determination has guided our varsity cagers to their best start in many seasons. Sparked by the sensational play-making of Gary Hurley and John Bobo, the Blue Comets have won more games than the past two seasons. Guided by Coach Lee J. Stone, our team was rated as a constant threat to the opponent in every game.

This year's cagers collided with stiff competition and posted a losing 3-6 record. After suffering two early defeats, the Comets rallied to conquer the South Rowan and Albemarle squads. Outstanding play by center Marc Moser, and guard Blake Bell spurred the team to defeat arch-rival Thomasville in one of the closest games of the season. Coached by Mr. Don Thomas, the cagers gained valuable experience for next year.

A combination of skills, sportsmanship, and unity go into the making of a good girls' basketball team. The Lady Comettes worked very hard and brought home a number of early victories. Miss Soler, their coach for the second year, provided skillful training.

Wrestling

Stamina and endurance proved to be the vital factors in the success of the Blue Comet wrestlers. Under the supervision of Coach Mike Olivo, the grapplers took early victories over Charlotte Independence and North Davidson. Senior co-captains Mike Boroughs and Mike Miller were the nucleus of the team.

Baseball

Coaches: Mr. Max Morgan, Mr. Bill Atkins.

Once again the "sandlot sluggers" brought glory to Asheboro High School. Smacking bats, stinging gloves, and slinging arms opened the way for an impressive 14-2 record and placed the Comets in the playoffs for the W.N.C.H.S.A.A. title.

Coached by Mr. Max Morgan, the Comets rolled up a six-game winning streak until being stopped by the determined Thomasville and Kannapolis squads. These two losses barely seemed to phase the Comets as they finished the season with seven more wins.

Tennis

Led by Joe Delk and other aggressive seniors, the netters developed one of the quickest teams in the conference. Defeating the first five opponents, the Comets illustrated the skill and stamina needed to play the sport of tennis. Finishing with a winning 9-3 record, the netters, coached by Mr. Morris Whitson, strengthened the reputation of Asheboro High School for developing competitive tennis teams.

In spite of finishing with a losing record, the Comet golf team showed signs of improvement toward the end of the season. After losing four individual matches, the Comets, inspired by seniors Steve York and Spencer Redding, won their first conference match. In the seven remaining matches, Coach Bill Smith led his team to four second-place seats.

Track

Being one of the most varied activities among our varsity sports, track reached its peak last season with the team victorious in four games. Coached by Mr. Russ Murphy, the well-conditioned team took first place at the Randolph County Track meet. The cindermen proved that hard practice and steadfast determination are the ways to success.
